

October 2, 2015
Marubeni Corporation

Construction of new grain silos and repair of protected heritage in Brazil

Terlogs Terminal Maritimo Ltda. ("Terlogs"), a wholly owned subsidiary of Marubeni Corporation ("Marubeni"), will construct new grain silos in the port of Sao Francisco do Sul, Santa Catarina, Brazil, and contribute to the local community by repairing the protected heritage in the city.

Recently, grain demand from China and Southeast Asia has been significantly increasing and these new silos, the construction of which is scheduled to be completed in February 2016, are expected to reinforce Terlogs' grain supplying ability to these countries. With new silos with a total storage capacity of 70,000 metric tons, the grain exporting volume of Terlogs will increase from 3.4 million metric tons to 4.2 million metric tons.

In addition to this project, Terlogs will repair the current Terlogs' office, state marine museum and municipal library. The Terlogs' office building was used as a railway station during 1904-1991 and has been registered as a protected heritage by governmental institute of Brazil, Instituto do Patrimônio Histórico e Artístico Nacional ("IPHAN"). In order to preserve this culturally important architecture and the surrounding landscape, Terlogs will repair these sites near the terminal under IPHAN's guidance.

Terlogs and Marubeni, as members of the local community, believe these contribution activities are highly important for society. We will continue to pursue sustainable growth that coexists with the society and surrounding environment.

TERLOGS SUMMARY

Name: Terlogs Terminal Maritimo Ltda.
Address: Sao Francisco do Sul, Santa Catarina, BRAZIL
Foundation: December, 2001
Business: Storage/loading of grain cargo

IPHAN SUMMARY

Name: Instituto do Patrimônio Histórico e Artístico Nacional
Address: Brasilia, BRAZIL
Foundation: July, 1934
Business: Governmental institute which registers and preserves protected heritage

Marubeni

New grain silos under construction

Terlogs' office

Old town of Sao Francisco do Sul